EDITORIAL NOTICE.

COMMENCING with the next, January, 1894, number, the ANNALS OF OPHTHALMOLOGY AND OTOTOLOGY will be again enlarged in size, in scope, and in diversity of contents.

It will contain a larger number and a more extensive variety of short original articles, and much thoughtful practical matter gleaned from the professional experience and writings of the world's scientific workers in OPHTHALMOLOGY, OTOTOLOGY, RHINOLOGY and LARYNGOLOGY.

The substantial support given the ANNALS by the profession warrants us in making these extensions and improvements without advancing the subscription price beyond Four Dollars a year.

The continuous approval manifested towards the ANNALS testifies to its success as a medium for communicating results of careful and intelligent observation.

In price, the ANNALS is the cheapest special journal published, considering the practical value of its contents.
